Eleanor Roosevelt Teacher Named Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher

Kenneth Bernstein, a Local, State and National Government and Advanced Placement U.S. Government teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, has been selected to receive The Washington Post's 2010 Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Award for Prince George's County. The Agnes Meyer Award is presented annually to one teacher from each Washington metropolitan area school district.

"Mr. Bernstein understands the individual needs of students, encourages their talents and fosters their self-esteem," said Eleanor Roosevelt Principal Reginald McNeill.

"He demonstrates a true understanding of how students develop and learn and challenges his students with his creative lessons."

Bernstein has been teaching at Eleanor Roosevelt High School for the past 11 years. He started working for Prince George's County Public Schools as an American History, English and Reading teacher at Kettering Middle School in January 1995.

Bernstein earned a Bachelor of Arts in Music from Haverford College, a Master of Arts in Religious Studies from Saint Charles Seminary and a Master of Arts in Teaching from Johns Hopkins University in Secondary Social Studies. He earned National Board Certification in Social Studies in November 2005, the highest level of certification a teacher can receive. Prior to teaching, his career focused on data processing, programming and analysis.

At Roosevelt, he has served as both Boys and Girls Junior Varsity Soccer coach, musical director of the Musical Theater, Mock Trial coach, member of the Character Education Committee, co-sponsor for the Class of 2009 and sponsor of the Muslim Students Association.

Bernstein has also taken on leadership roles at his school, serving as the Prince George's County Educators Association building representative and chair of the Philosophy and Goals Subcommittee for the Middle States evaluation of the school. At Kettering Middle School, he was Social Studies Department Chair, Computer Technology Committee Chair and Multicultural Liaison.

Known as an expert in his field, Bernstein is often approached by local and national groups to provide comments, serve on panels or give presentations on his areas of expertise. He has served as a member of the Congressional Youth Leadership Council Nominating Committee, a guest lecturer at Bowie State University, a guest blogger for The New York Times, a panelist for the Yearlykos Convention, a presenter at the Maryland State Educators Association's Annual Convention and a facilitator for the Maryland Council for the Social Studies.

"I believe that unless the United States can maintain vibrant and viable public schools, we run a real risk that our experiment in democracy will fail. Like Jefferson, I believe that democracy cannot function successfully without an informed and participatory citizenry," said Bernstein. "As a teacher, I believe that all students

New Civil Discourse Group Holds Organizational Meeting

The initial gathering of a new Northern Prince George’s County branch of the Coffee Party was held in Greenbelt on Sunday, March 28 with the inaugural meeting taking place at the New Deal Café. The newly-constituted Coffee Party’s ultimate aim is to return civility to political discourse.

Participants made tentative decisions at the organizational meeting about the group’s purposes and actions. Those present, whatever their political affiliation, expressed dismay at the increasingly rancorous nature of political discussion and the 10 people at the meeting saw the group’s purpose as informational.

Various members contributed suggestions about how to accomplish that goal. Several, for example, recommended letter-writing to local newspapers urging moderation and a focus on facts. Also proposed was a group visit to elected officials representing Prince George’s County to support their civil discussion of issues. Others volunteered to investigate providing information booths at local festivities such as Greenbelt’s Labor Day Festival.

Seeing demonization of one’s political opponents and their viewpoints as a distraction from scrutiny of the real issues, members of the Coffee Party seek to redirect attention from name-calling to the issues. Participants said the heated rhetoric on the airwaves and on the internet distracts public attention from facts meriting serious discussion.

The club decided to hold its next meeting in early April at a time and place to be determined.

County Holds Public Zoning Meeting

A community meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 14 from 10 a.m. to noon to discuss proposed revisions to the County Zoning Ordinance and Subdivision Regulations. This month’s topic is commercial and industrial zones. This meeting will be held at the County Administration Building, 4th Floor, Planning Department Board Room, 14741 Governor Oden Bowie Drive, Upper Marlboro. All are welcome.

ERHS Students Hold Hunger Fundraiser

On Friday, April 9 from 5 to 8:30 p.m. students at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) will hold their first World Festival 2010, a fundraiser to fight world hunger with song, dance and a multicultural potluck dinner. All proceeds from the event will be donated to Heifer International. The program is sponsored by a range of student-run organizations that celebrate the student body’s multiple cultural backgrounds with an evening of food and performances for the public.

Led by the French Honor Society, the World Festival was first conceived as a way to bring together ERHS’ more than 15 language honor societies and ethnic student associations working together for a common cause. Nirvan Sengupta, a senior and member of ERHS’ Spanish Honor Society, said, “I’m excited for this opportunity to present world music to the people of this school. There aren’t that many opportunities to play music outside of the classical stuff.”

French Honor Society President Claire Flintoff felt Heifer International’s donation of livestock and training to impoverished families in 55 countries would appeal to the groups’ diverse backgrounds and interests.

There is a fee. (See ad on page 9.) The World Fair will be held in the ERHS Cafeteria, 7601 Hanover Parkway.

Belair Presents Native American Lecture

The Belair Mansion will host a lecture by Natalie Proctor on “Changes of the Seasons in Native American Culture” at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 13. This event is free; no reservations are needed. Call 301-809-3089 for more information.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

We’re happy to report the plans for the Golden Age Club Anniversary Luncheon are firmly in place for April 17 at the Hilton Inn in College Park. So get out your best “duds” and prepare for a delightful affair with the New Dimension Singers and good food and fellowship.

The speaker for the April 14 meeting will be John Mealey, who will give us information about wine. Sorry, no free samples.

We were pleased to welcome Shirley Egenreider back as she has been absent due to illness and we hope Margaret Smith will be back soon.

If you have noticed people reading the labels on cans and boxes at the Co-op lately, well, here’s the answer – this is due to the talk Dr. Stephanie Trifoglio gave to the Club about the importance of checking what we’re eating and drinking. It was most informative but a bit scary, too.

Obituaries

Richard C. Schrom, Sr.

Former Greenbelter Richard Carl Schrom, Sr., 71, of Beltsville died March 31, 2010, at the Season's Hospice in Randallstown, Md.

He was the son of the late Frederick W.H. Schrom, Sr. and Lois J. Schrom who owned and operated the Schrom Airport during World War II. Much of the land that Greenbelt sits on today was owned by his Grandfather, William Henry Schrom, which was purchased during the time of the New Deal.

Mr. Schrom was a longtime resident of Greenbelt. As a child he participated in Little League, swam in the famous Greenbelt swimming pool every summer and attended the Drop Inn when he was a teen.

In June 1957 he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps, earning the rank of corporal.

After his discharge, he returned home and built Eagle Iron Works, a very successful ornamental iron business in Beltsville.

He was active in the Lions Club and, through his business, sponsored a slow pitch softball team for many years.

A loving father, he is survived by his son Richard Carl Schrom, Jr. and his stepson John Michael Simmons; his brother, Fred Schrom and his wife Gerrie, War, W.Va.; two sisters, Lorene Barry, Gilroy, Cal., and Lois Bequette and her husband Frank, Frostburg, Md.; a granddaughter Hannah Schrom who resides in Florida; five nephews and many grand-nephews and nieces.

A memorial service with military honors will be held on Friday, April 9 at 7 p.m. at Gasch's Funeral Home, 4739 Baltimore Ave., Hyattsville. Mr. Schrom's ashes will be inurned at Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, Va.

Condolences to the family and friends of former Greenbelter Richard Carl Schrom, Sr., 71, of Beltsville, who died March 31, 2010. Mr. Schrom was the son of the late Frederick and Lois Schrom, who owned and operated Schrom's Airport, an important part of early Greenbelt history. The airport was located on the northeastern outskirts of town before the construction of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, the Beltway and Greenway Center.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Robert H. McIntire, 91, of Green Ridge House, on March 29, 2010. He was a World War II veteran of the Coast Guard and a member of American Legion Post 136.

Our sympathy to Peg Shorter and her family on the sudden death of her daughter Christina Alice Burgess, 54, of Parkway.

Congratulations to:

— The four ERHS students announced yesterday as National Achievement Scholarship winners: Reese H. Fuller, Fayola F. Fears, Benjamin I. Shaibu and

Elementary School (SHLES) that are coordinated by the Greenbelt Recreation Department.

The silent auction will include handmade jewelry by Lucy Dirksen, pottery from Mea Rhee, harp lessons from April Stace Vega and more. Harp 46 will perform groovy, hypnotic and complex Celtic-jazz-world fusion music with April Stace Vega on harp, Nucleo Vega on percussion from around the globe and Posido Vega on bass. Transatlantic Crossing will play high energy fiddle tunes from both sides of the Atlantic with Anne Gardner on fiddle and Jon Gardner on guitar. Angella Foster, artistic director of Alight Dance Theater, will perform a solo dance.

The Recreation Department launched its free afterschool arts programming at SHLES last fall. Staff members Anne Gardner and Lucy Dirksen worked with Principal Natasha Jenkins to create an afterschool art class. Originally designed for 30 children, the class attracted over 130 registrants, who are now being accommodated in four sections.

Need Art

“The kids in our public schools

Harp 46 will perform Celtic jazz fusion at a school benefit concert on Saturday, April 10 for the SHLES art program.

are starving for art,” says arts instructor Lucy Dirksen. “Every child needs it. They love the art and the positive feedback. The toughest thing with this program was telling kids whose parents didn’t sign them up that we just weren’t able to add them to the already overflowing classes. The tears were heartbreaking.”

This year’s art sessions will be culminating in an all-inclusive show at the school and a mini-show at the Beltway Plaza Mall. “We’re just thrilled with the response of the Mall’s management. This is such a great opportunity for the kids and for the community,” said Dirksen.

There is a fee for admission. (See city ad on page 5 for prices). Greenbelt Community Church is at the corner of Hillside and Crescent Roads.

For more information call 240-542-2060.

GCAN Meets, Hears Four Energy Speakers

The next Greenbelt Climate Action Network (GCAN) meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 14 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 114 at the Greenbelt Community Center. Representatives will be present from four organizations working to reduce energy consumption.

Shaine Griffin from the Baltimore Neighborhood Energy Challenge will talk about the challenge, a 9-month pilot program to help households in eight neighborhoods reduce energy use, save money and build a more sustainable Baltimore.

Terrence Laney and Chii-San SunOwen of Weatherize DC will talk about the program launched last September for home energy efficiency while creating good green jobs. The program weatherized 200 homes by March, generating seven green jobs and saving homeowners up to 30 percent on energy bills as well as offsetting 3,645 metric tons of carbon.

Amanda Duzak of Clean Currents will talk about the Green Neighborhood Effect in which 75 local neighborhoods are signing residents up for residential wind energy. Clean Currents donates $10 per enrolled household to use toward a green project.

Jim Cohen and Matt Berres from the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Building Committee will describe the plans for major capital improvements to reduce overall energy consumption while improving residents’ comfort and the livability of their homes. The program emphasizes use of sustainable environmentally-friendly energy sources while maintaining GHI’s historic integrity.

For more information call Lore Rosenthal at 301-345-2234 or email lore@simplicity-matters.org.

The concession stand will be open as well.

The Greenbelt Photo Club will be making a group trip to the National Arboretum on Saturday, April 10. They will meet in the Greenbelt Community Center parking lot at 7:15 a.m. to leave by carpool at 7:30 sharp or meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Arboretum’s Administration Building Information Desk. The Club meets Tuesday, April 13 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in Room 112 at the Greenbelt Community Center for its regularly scheduled meeting. There will be discussion and submission of material for both the Club portfolio and an upcoming group show at Doctor’s Hospital. Attendees are asked to bring three of their best digital images for the portfolio and up to five prints good for a hospital environment for inclusion in the group show.

The club has monthly meetings during the school year on the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center.

For more information email club President Anita Woodruff at greenbeltphotoclub@yahoo.com.

in GHI will be visited by an enumerator. The enumerators will collect information from every housing unit to verify that all information received is accurate and to further ensure that every unit is counted. This includes units/residences for which mailed questionnaires were returned and/or residents completed and returned a replacement questionnaire.

This means every residence in GHI will be visited even if a questionnaire was returned to make sure every unit and every resident is counted. It is not necessary for residents in GHI to complete a mailed questionnaire or to submit a replacement questionnaire, as the census will canvass all units in GHI.

While it is not necessary for GHI residents to fill out a new questionnaire at a Be Counted site, they may still choose to do so. The new Be Counted site at the library is the closest for most GHI residents.

Greenbriar, Others

Many Greenbriar residents did not receive questionnaires in the mail. A resident of any household that did not receive a questionnaire or which received an incorrectly addressed or incompletely addressed questionnaire may go to one of the Be Counted sites (see box on page 1) to get a questionnaire to complete and mail. After April 12 residents may call the U. S. Census at 1-866-872-6868 to provide information. A third choice for residents is to attend one of the many upcoming census events in order to be counted.

Door-to-Door

Beginning in May census enumerators will be sent out to any address for which a questionnaire has not been returned by mail.

The Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Awards were established to recognize dedicated teachers who have shown initiative, creativity, and professionalism. Winners are nominated by members of the community and selected by their individual school systems.

This year’s winners will be celebrated on May 11 during a gala awards ceremony hosted by The Washington Post.

CHEARS Gardeners Prepare for Spring Plantings

by Barbara Hopkins

Greenbelt homeowners aren't the only people in town inspired by the recent warm weather to get out to the garden. The Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society's (CHEARS) Three Sisters Demonstration Project in Greenbelt, funded by the Greenbelt Community Foundation, is making progress in establishing three gardens in different sections of the city.

Margaret Cahalan of CHEARS reports that four garden boxes were constructed at a workshop held on Sunday, March 28. Plans are to establish raised beds in three areas of the city: near the flagpole by the Community Center, at Schrom Hills Park and near the Springhill Lake Community Building.

Native Roots

The project's concept is based on the historical gardening style of some Native Americans, who planted beans, corn and squash together in the same bed with the knowledge that each plant type contributed to the success of the whole garden. Such practices are continued by some gardeners to this day. The corn provides support for the climbing beans, which feed the soil through nitrogen-fixing bacteria associated with their roots. The squash provides shade that keeps the soil cool and moist and its spreading habit helps deter weeds. Cahalan uses the Three Sisters Garden concept as a metaphor for different neighborhoods of Greenbelt each contributing something to the city. She said the idea is to plant the beds with vegetables, which may include beans, squash and corn. While the area has certainly had a preview of summer lately, the chance for frost still exists, making it risky to plant vegetables yet. Meanwhile, the group has planted four fruit trees near the Community Center.

Cahalan plans also to draw on the principles of square foot gardening, where planting is done in blocks rather than rows and gardeners usually reach into the raised beds to garden, rather than walking on and, thus, compacting the soil.

Three more workshops are planned with the next one being held on Sunday, April 25 at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. More information about that workshop will be available within the next two weeks. Most likely, a pot luck meal will be part of it. All are invited.

New GAC Drama Portrays Bonds of War, Friendship

“Fred & Frieda,” a new drama by playwright Nicole Burton, will have its beginning run starting Thursday, April 15 at the Greenbelt Arts Center. The author describes how for years she kept a tattered newspaper obituary of an African-American soldier from north Georgia who had taken part in liberating a concentration camp at the end of World War II.

She describes how one day she felt compelled to write a play based on that old story. The play became “Fred & Frieda” which, after public readings at the Kennedy Center, Metro Stage and other venues in the Washington metropolitan area, will have its premiere performance at the Greenbelt Arts Center. The play explores the injustices of segregation as compared with the horrors of the Nazi genocide.

Burton spent months researching survivor narratives at the U.S. Holocaust Museum and interviewing Jewish friends who had escaped Germany. For the soldier Fred’s story, she found William Keyes, a veteran of the all-black 761st Tank Battalion in Annapolis. When the now-88-year-old Keyes told her how the black soldiers had helped to liberate the concentration camps, his story ignited her passion to tell these almost-forgotten stories.

In Burton’s play, Fred rescues a 16-year-old German-Jewish girl when his all-black battalion stumbles on the Ohrdruf concentration camp. Fred and Frieda remain in touch for the next 50 years, although Frieda denies being a survivor until her grandfather’s ghost orders her to return to Berlin.

She then begs Fred to describe the day the “Black Angels” broke through the Ohrdruf fence and saved her. Fred, however, is facing his own demons.

Author

Nicole J. Burton is the author of 17 award-winning dramas and comedies. Her screen treatment for “Southwest Remembered,” a film about urban renewal in Washington, D.C., won the CINE Golden Eagle.

The weekday matinees will be attended by students from Eleanor Roosevelt, DuVal and DeMatha high schools and residents from the Leisure World and Riderwood retirement communities. These shows are also open to the public.

Following the matinees, Burton will be joined for a post-show discussion by liberator William Keyes on April 15, Romanian concentration camp survivor George Joseph on April 16 and German concentration camp survivors Lotte Doloff and Ruth Horlick on April 18.

Ticket reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.
